As mariachi bands, green, white, and red flags, and an endless stream of delicious meals converge on the streets of Chicago through various festivals this weekend for the Mexican Independence Day celebrations, we would like to invite our readers to take a look inside and see how Mexican-Americans are shaping our culture through several platforms. From comedians, to fashion designers, and even a business man who decided to create a festival honoring the diversity of Mexican cuisine, this is a great time to reflect on all the wondrous contributions Mexicans and Mexican-Americans have made to the evolution of our daily lives. We wish the Mexican community a joyous Independence Day. Viva Mexico!

SUFRE DE IMPOTENCIA? CUANDO EL VIAGRA FALLA, QUE HACER?

Viagra, Levitra y Cialis no han dado resultado? Esta usted cansado de las dolorosas injecciones y de insertar medicamentos en su pene? "Cuando el Viagra y otros tratamientos fallan, la mejor opcion puede ser La Bombita de Coloplast, un implante de pene inflable (IPI)," asegura el Dr. Levine. El IPI, o La Bombita, es un aparato compuesto de agua salina que es insertado durante un procedimiento ambulatorio. El IPI es completamente interno e indetectable para la mayoria de las damas. Al apretar la pompa se crea una erección la que mantendra su rigidez indefinidamente. Al oprimir la valvula su pene regresara a su estado flacido natural. El Placer, la ejaculacion, el orgasmo y la sensación del pene no cambian. Lo mas importante es que el IPI le devolvera la confianza sexual masculina. Los IPI estan aprobados por la FDA, son sumamente confiable y de alta satisfacción y la mayoria de los seguros cubren el implante. Si esta interesado en informarse más usted puede realizar una citi confidencial con el Dr Levine.

Reluctant Independence Fighter

By Daniel Nardini

Much controversy remains surrounding the historical figure Agustin de Iturbide. Born into a prominent criollo (those born of Spanish blood in the Americas) family in 1783, Iturbide became a soldier and then officer in the Royal Spanish Army in New Spain (Mexico). Eventually he became general, and his life seemed pretty much assured that he would remain a part of Spanish authority in New Spain. Then in 1810, another criollo named Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla started a revolt in Dolores that spread throughout central New Spain and nearly took the capital City of New Spain. Interestingly enough, Hidalgo actually offered Iturbide a command of one of the rebel armies, but Iturbide refused. Instead Iturbide fought in the Spanish royalist army and helped to defeat Hidalgo and also Hidalgo's follower Jose Maria Morelos. Only Vicente Guerrero, one of Morelos' followers, was left.

By 1815, after Morelos was executed, the independence movement was all but crushed. The last independence rebel, Vicente Guerrero, was on the run and still fighting Spanish rule with a small guerrilla force. The fight for independence seemed lost, and it seemed that Spanish rule was secured. But then events in Spain would change the whole situation in New Spain. Although Spain regained its independence from France, the Spanish Crown came under the influence of the Liberal Party. The Spanish Conservative Party, which opposed the Liberals, fought to contest the new Spanish government. New Spain became an extension of this Liberal-Conservative fight. Many New Spain criollos, who were very conservative, did not want to be ruled by the Spanish Liberals. Underneath this political cauldron was the issue of who should really rule New Spain. The criollos, although they had de facto control of the economy, had no political control over the land. Control of the country still rested with the peninsulares (Spanish citizens born and raised in Spain). A growing number of criollos wanted to get rid of the peninsulares, and this meant the end of Spanish rule.

Likewise, Iturbide was having a change of heart. He had briefly been dismissed from his Continued on page 7

LABOR DAY: In celebration of Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 3, 2012, I would like to give recognition to the many dedicated Hispanic Labor Leaders. All of these Hispanic Unionists have fought and are fighting to continue the improvement of wages, hours, working conditions and benefits for workers. Their dedication, hard work and involvement in their Union helped create the middle class in America.

I CAN ATTEST to the fact that organizing and representing workers requires hard work and perseverance. My experience is based on the fact that I was formerly the President of the Chicago Typographical Union No. 16/CWA 14408, elected during the1985 Chicago Tribune strike. I have the distinction of being the only Mexican-American elected President of CTU #16. For 10 years, I was elected the Recording Secretary and Organizer of my Union and served as delegate in both the State AFL-CIO and Chicago Federation of Labor for 17 years. Also, for 12 years as Secretary Treasurer of the Chicago Allied Printing Trades Council. In total I was elected 13 times to Union office.

IN 1973, State AFL-CIO President Stanley Johnson appointed me to represent Illinois Hispanic labor at the National Constitutional Convention of the Labor Council for Latin American Advancement [LCLAA] held in Albuquerque, New Mexico. It was an honor for me to represent Hispanic labor of Illinois. Presently, I am the President/founder of the Hispanic American Labor Council. HALC was organized October 21, 1973.

ALL OF THE Hispanic labor leaders whom I have had the honor of knowing over the many years in my Union career have a common trait; they are all active within their Unions. They hold the positions of Union Officers, Business Managers, Presidents, Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer, Sgt.-at-Arms, Trustees, Union Representatives, Organizers, Shop Stewards and Union delegates; and each of them work faithfully in organizing campaigns, negotiating contracts, serving as strike captains or coordinators, attending many Union meetings, serving on Union committees and participating in Union elections. They spend weeks, months and years toil-involvement is the backbone of their respective Unions. HERE are their names and Union affiliations:

JORGE RAMIREZ, son of Mexican immigrants, is President of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Ramirez has a law degree from the Chicago-Kent College of Law and graduated as a student scholarship athlete from the University of Texas at El Paso in 1993 with a double major in marketing and computer information system.

RAMIREZ was previously the Secretary-Treasurer of the Federation. Prior to joining the CFL, was elected Vice President and served as Executive Director of Local 1546 of the United Food and Commercial Workers International. He serves on numerous commissions and boards

JESSE M. RIOS, formerly the President of the American Federal Government Employees Union, Local No. 648 [AFGE] and presently serving on the Executive Board of the Chicago Federation of Labor holding the position of Sgt. of Arms. He was an active Union member with the United Auto Workers Union prior to becoming the President of Local 648. He is very knowledgeable on issues affecting Unions and the middle class. Jesse is the Vice-President of the Hispanic American Labor Council and he lives in Pilsen.

JOSE A. CAEZ is the Business Manager/Financial Secretary of the IBEW Local 1031. Jose's Union was the largest electrical workers Union in the State of Illinois. He has been active in his Union for many years and served on numerous Union committees. Presently, he is a delegate to the Chicago Federation of Labor and serves on the National Labor Council for Latin American Advancement [LCLAA] Executive Board and Treasurer of the Hispanic American Labor Council.

JOSE GUERRERO is a member of the Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 241. He was formerly the Vice President of Local 241 and active in Union affairs for many years. He is presently a member of the Executive Board of the National Labor Council for Latin American Advancement [LCLAA]. In his retirement, Jose remains a strong advocate for the causes of the United Farm Workers of America. Jose said: "I'm proud to be a Union member"

In celebration of Labor Day is this oil painting of Union ironworkers by a realist painter, Garin Baker, New York, New York 1961. This painting hangs on the wall in the Galter Pavilion, second floor, at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, Chicago. A wall plaque reads: "Baker painted large urban cityscapes...At the core of his work is his understanding of people and their relationship to the environment. Baker's work celebrates the human spirit."

"The message I would like to share to our community is to get involved and take part in celebrating the independence of our country. Even though we are not in Mexico, it is that much more important to show our pride in our country and community by attending events that make it possible to show how proud we are to be Mexican! I would also like to add that the Mexican Civic Society will show its pride in this important event this Saturday at 12pm downtown at the El Grito parade. Starting on Columbus drive and going to grant park where I will also be crowned in the coronacion Azteca ceremony."

command by the Spanish viceroy, only to barely be reinstated. Because he was a criollo, he was still treated as a second class person by the Spanish Crown. He had had enough. He entered secret negotiations with his former foe Vicente Guerrero and came to an agreement with the former rebel that in exchange for getting rid of Spanish rule, Guerrero consented to Iturbide becoming head of state. And so, in 1821, New Spain had declared itself free and became Mexico. Iturbide headed a provisional government that took control of Mexico City. Sadly, the fight between Liberals and Conservatives in Spain spilled over into Mexico. Iturbide, believing that only a monarchy could preserve the newly independent Mexico, declared himself Mexico's first emperor and ruled Mexico for a year. In 1823, Iturbide was deposed by one of his generals, Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna with the aid of Guerrero who wanted a republic. Iturbidy went into exile, but returned to Mexico in 1824. What he did not know was that the Mexican government had issued an order for his arrest and execution. Iturbide was executed on July 19, 1824.

In 1833, Mexican President Santa Anna tried to rehabilitate the memory of Iturbide. Iturbide's remains were brought to Mexico City for full military honors. The next Mexican President, Anastasio Bustamante, provided Iturbide's widow with a stipend, and the Mexican Congress conferred all honors on the memory of Iturbide. From loyal servant of the Spanish Crown to becoming the man who freed Mexico, Iturbide will also long be remembered as the chief designer of Mexico's modern flag of the tricolor of green, white and red with the Aztec Eagle in the middle.

What better way to celebrate the life of Sor Juana Ines de la Cruz, than with a night of comedy. The National Museum of Mexican Art, in celebration of the 2012 Sor Juana Festival: A Tribute to Mexican Women hosted Wonder Women of Comedy last Saturday evening in honor of the 17th century Mexican nun.

The comedic line-up consisted of Gwen La Roka, Amy Eisenberg, Jackie Herrera and Patti Vasquez who also served as host of the evening.

"When I put this festival together I think of my mother and I sort of imagine the women who didn't get to live out their dreams outside of the kitchen," said Jorge Valdivia, director of performing arts at the National Museum of Mexican Art.

This is the first year the Museum has put together a comedy show during the Sor Juana festival, so it was not exactly a walk in the park for Valdivia. "There's always hurdles and challenges to overcome," said Valdivia.

"But in the end when you see people having a great time and you see them truly engaged and connected... I think the golden seal is the applause and the laughter." Valdivia said he knew he wanted comedians who were of course female and of Mexican background, but he also wanted them to break barriers and push the edge in a way that would reflect women of the Latino community.

And in that aspect he truly succeeded in choosing the right candidates.

The four-some were unapologetically funny, coming from different walks of life and ultimately proving that Latinas are not one-dimensional. "They were very outspoken and very in-your-face," said Valdivia of the night's performers. "And they didn't apologize for that and that's ok."

The night opened with new comer, Jackie Herrera. Herrera said her comedy comes from everyday life, but she took consideration in the Sor Juan festival when preparing her material of the night. "I hope [women] feel that they can be empowered," said Herrera. "And I think that it's important for women to be lighthearted at some points in their life." Perhaps the most uncensored comedian of the night was Amy Eisenberg. Eisenberg said that although she felt overwhelmed and excited to be a part of the Wonder Women of Comedy during the Sor Juana festival, she also felt awkward. "My dad was the Mexican part of who I am and I never met him," said Eisenberg. "But I felt like I learned a lot tonight. It was amazing.' Eisenberg hoped that if the audience could take away one thing from the night, it would be to not take life so seriously. "I just want people to realize that life isn't so serious and Continued on page 12

En Honor a Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz

Por: Celia Martínez

Que mejor manera de celebrar la vida de Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz, que con una noche de comedia. El Museo Nacional de Arte Mexicano, en celebración del Festival a Sor Juana del 2012: Un Tributo a las mujeres Mexicanas ofrecido por Wonder Women of Comedy la tarde del sábado pasado, en honor de la monja mexicana del siglo 17.

La alineación de la comedia está compuesta por Gwen La Roka, Amy Eisenberg, Jackie Herrera y Patti Vásquez, quienes fungieron también como anfitrionas de la velada.

"Al organizar este festival pienso en mi madre y me imagino a los mujeres que no realizaron sus sueños fuera de la cocina", dijo Jorge Valdivia, director de arte del Museo Mexicano de Artes Mexicanas.

Este es el primer año que el museo organiza una comedia durante el festival de Sor Juana, por lo que no fue exactamente al fácil para Valdivia. "hay obstáculos y retos que vencer", dijo Valdivia. "Pero al final, cuando uno ve que la gente lo disfruta y la ve verdaderamente entregada y conectada.... Creo que el premio es el aplauso y la risa".

Valdivia dijo que sabía que quería comediantes que fuera del corte femenino y de antecedentes mexicanos, pero que también quería derribar barreras y forzar los límites de forma que reflejaran a la mujer de la comunidad latina.

Y en ese aspecto tuvo éxito al escoger a las candidatas ideales. Las cuatro eran sumamente divertidas, provenientes de diferentes, procedentes de diferentes ámbitos de vida y finalmente probaron que la mujer latina no es de una sola dimensión. "Son francas y abiertas", dijo Valdivia de las intérpretes. "Y no se disculpan por eso y eso está bien". La noche empezó con una recién llegada, Jackie Herrera. Herrera dijo que su comedia proviene de la vida diaria, pero que tomó en consideración el festival de Sor Juana al preparar su material de la noche. "Espero que la mujer sienta que puede tener más poder", dijo Herrera. "Y yo creo que es importante que la mujer se muestre alegre en ciertos momentos de su vida".

Tal vez la menos censurada comediante de la noche fue Amy Eisenberg. Eisenberg dijo que aunque se sentía abrumada y entusiasmada de ser parte de Wonder Women of Comedy durante el festival de Sor Juana, también se sentía incómoda. Mi padre fue la parte mexicana mía y yo nunca lo conocí", dijo Eisenberg. "Pero siento que esta noche aprendí mucho. Fue asombroso". Eisenber espera que si la audiencia pudo sacar algo bueno de la noche, sea el no tomar la vida demasiado en serio. "Solo quiero que la gente se de cuenta que la vida no es tan seria", dijo. "Pásenla bien y disfrútenla".

La audiencia pareció estar agradablemente sorprendida cuando Gwen la Roka salió al estrado dos veces durante el show. La Roka no es ajeno al standup, ya que ha presentado shows para Laugh Factory y el club de comedia O Mikey. "Es un honor ser parte de algo que celebra la hermosura de la mujer mexicana", dijo la Roka. "Mujeres fuertes".

La Roka explicó histéricamente como las madres mexicanas susurran innecesariamente y como las familias latinas nunca aparecen en los shows como las Super Nannies. Sin embargo, dijo La Roka, ella no integra intencionalmente sus raíces latinas en la comedia. "Siempre existe mucho estereotipo en la comedia.

Creo que sería fácil para mi salir al estrado y decir 'hey, ¿Dónde están los mexicanos? Cuiden sus carteras'. Eso es algo que todo mundo puede hacer''. La Roka dijo que su técnica es tomar las situaciones comunes de la vida diaria y encontrarlas divertidas, lo que significa que algunas veces habla el espanglish o discute la cultura latino o mexicana. "Ya es parte de lo que yo soy, por lo que fluye naturalmente de mi", dijo La Roka. "Se refleja en todo mi material".

Valdivia dijo que decidió incluir un show

de comedia en el festival de Sor Juana de este año porque ha visto un auge en comedia stand-up en la comunidad latina, así como en los latinos en comedia y dijo que le encantaría incorporarse todos los años a la comedia stand-up como parte del festival, especialmente después de una gran concurrencia.

Estoy tratando de honrar a las mujeres que trato de reconocer", dijo Valdivia. "Quiero brindarles respeto en la forma correcta y pienso que lo he logrado esta noche".

they shouldn't take it so serious," she said. "Just have a great time and enjoy it."

The audience seemed pleasantly surprised when Gwen La Roka came out on stage twice during the show. La Roka is no stranger to stand-up, having done shows for the Laugh Factory and the Mikey O comedy club. "It is an honor to be a part of something that is celebrating the loveliness of Latina Mexicanas," said La Roka. "Strong women." La Roka hysterically explained how Mexican mothers whisper unnecessarily and how Latino families never appear on shows like the Super Nanny. However, La Roka said she doesn't intentionally integrate her Latina roots into her comedy. "There's already a lot of stereotypical comedy out there. I think it would be easy for me to come out on stage and say 'hey where the Mexicanos at? Watch your wallets'. That's something that anybody can do."

La Roka said her technique is taking the everyday, ordinary situations in life and finding the funny, which means that sometimes she'll speak Spanglish or discuss the Latino or Mexican culture. "It's already a part of who I am so it kind of just comes out," said La Roka. "It just sprinkles all over my material."

Valdivia said he decided to include a comedy show in this year's Sor Juana festival because he has seen a boom in stand-up comedy in the Latino community as well as Latinos in comedy and said he would love to incorporate stand-up comedy as part of the festival every year, especially after a great turnout.

"I'm trying to honor the women that I'm trying to recognize," said Valdivia. "I want to pay them respect the right way and I think we did that tonight."

Empowerment Through Fashion and Death

By: Celia Martinez

Runway? Check. Fashionable couture? Check. Death? Check. Cultura met Couture last Friday night as fashion enthusiasts gathered at The National Museum of Mexican Art to celebrate the elegance of death at La Catrina Fashion Show during the Sor Juana Festival (celebrating strong women in the Mexican community.) The unconventional evening featured collections by four Latina designers and incorporated "La Muerte" or Death, in the form of an elegant woman, as the guest of honor.

Originally created by Mexican printmaker Jose Guadalupe Posada in 1910, the image of La Catrina, the well-dressed female skeleton, has come to be associated with El Dia de los Muertos, a day when many people from the Mexican culture honor their deceased loved ones and laugh at the concept of death at the same time.

The four women who showcased their designs in this one of a kind night were Claudia Urrutia, whose works include fauxfur, evening gowns and business attire; Elizabeth Lara, who specializes in bridal, evening and special occasion dresses; Elda De La Rosa, an established couture designer from Chicago who specializes in evening attire; and Lilia Vega, a Day of the Dead folk artist who specializes in paper mache skull masks. As the designers frantically prepared the models backstage, Lilia Vega stood by her elaborate collection of hand-made paper mache masks that would be showcased that evening. Her well-crafted eerie creations were entirely unique and each more frightening than the next. "The Mexican culture is my inspiration. I'm always integrating the Mexican concept- the Mexican culture. It has to be reflected in my art," said Vega. "I'm hoping [the audience] will have a good impression and maybe see the Day of the Dead from a different perspective," she added.

For Claudia Urrutia, who was actually born on "El Dia de los Muertos" (November 2), being a part of this fashion show during the Sor Juana Festival is a true honor. "I'm honored and excited because it is my culture," said Urrutia. "And I'm a big admirer of Sor Juana."

Elizabeth Lara stood near her collection of wedding gowns that neatly hanged on a rack. She cautiously inspected the gowns and accessories and made finishing touches before the start of the show. "I think it's gonna look really cool," said Lara, who was more excited than concerned to have her collection of wedding gowns be presented with the image of La Catrina.

Ultimately, the unlikely combination created a one of a kind intense presentation not commonly seen or easily replicated on a runway. But most importantly, it created a sense of pride and female empowerment through Mexican culture, which is the pure essence of what the Sor Juana Festival is all about. For images of this great
