Mayor Lightfoot, CPS Launch Groundbreaking Summer Program

By: Ashmar Mandou

A new groundbreaking summer program called Summer for Change (S4C) designed to reach Chicago's vulnerable youth launched Wednesday with the help of Mayor Lori E. Lightfoot and Chicago Public School (CPS). S4C is a six-week program that will provide youth with access to individualized mentoring, group-based therapy, educational opportunities, enrichment activities and more. "After the final school bell rings and the school year ends, our commitment to the growth, enrichment and safety of Chicago's children continues," said Mayor Lightfoot. "Summer for Change will offer high school students meaningful activities and programs to participate in, providing the sense of safety, service and opportunity over summer break."

Jointly delivered by Youth Advocate Programs and Children's Home and Aid, the CPS-led program will include individualized mentoring for four hours per day, group-based trauma-informed therapy multiple times a week, enrichment activities such as field trips, community service projects and a variety of recreational activities. Each participant will also receive stipend of up to $200 per week and a free lunch every day. Summer for Change programming and activities will incur no cost to participants or their families. In addition to Summer for Change, Mayor Lightfoot joined city departments and community leaders to expand on Chicago's citywide plan for keeping youth engaged in safe, fun and productive activities as CPS kicks off its summer break starting Thursday, June 21st. A new comprehensive resource guide, called "YOUR CHI" provides students and their families with a strong menu of information on positive programming and events, youth health services, learning opportunities, and free summer meals being hosted throughout the city for children of all ages this summer season.

"Summer is here and what better place to spend it than our parks," said Chicago Park District Superintendent Michael Kelly. "In addition to welcoming more than 40,000 campers, we are excited to offer a vast menu of sports, cultural and recreation opportunities for our children, teens and families." In "YOUR CHI," families can find information on a wide range of programs and events provided by the city's departments and agencies available in parks, schools, and community centers near their home. Each summer in Chicago, youths in grades K-12 can enroll in a wide range of athletic and cultural opportunities, including thousands of sports leagues and clubs provided by the Chicago Park District, to the more than 1,200 parks citywide that are hosting entertainment and movies series in the parks. Youth and their parents or guardians can explore the YOUR CHI guide online at <https://www.chicago.gov/summer> or by calling 311.

Un Brillante Futuro Para Chicago

Por: Joe Domínguez, CEO de ComEd y codirector del comité de transición ambiental del alcalde
 Editado por Lawndale Bilingual News

El 13 de mayo marcó un nuevo día para Chicago ya que la Alcaldesa Lori Lightfoot tomó el timón de la tercera ciudad más grande de Estados Unidos. El día uno, la nueva alcaldesa develó planes para responder a la crisis del clima, reduciendo la contaminación ambiental de los sectores eléctricos y de transporte, haciendo la infraestructura más resistente al cada vez más volátil clima y creando empleos y oportunidades económicas para todas las comunidades. Estos planes fueron desarrollados por el comité de transición ambiental de su administración, un grupo de 35 organizaciones, incluyendo ComEd, que trabajó más de cinco semanas para desarrollar nuevos enfoques para las prioridades ambientales y de energía de Chicago. ComEd ilumina la vida de 2.7 millones de residentes de Chicago y será un socio clave en implementar la visión de la ciudad de la Alcaldesa Lightfoot, incluyendo:

Electrificación del transporte público: La revolución del vehículo eléctrico (VE) se acelera rápidamente, ya que los fabricantes cambian la inversión para atender la demanda del creciente mercado de VE que reducen la contaminación ambiental. Igual de rápido, los trenes, autobuses y otras formas de transporte masivo están cambiando a vehículos con baterías eléctricas. Aunque retirar los vehículos de combustibles fósiles ayudará a reducir el smog y atender la crisis climática, creará nuevos requisitos para nuestra red, para agregar infraestructura de carga, atender demanda eléctrica adicional y alcanzar niveles más altos de confiabilidad. En ComEd, nuestra inversión en redes inteligentes ya han logrado un 60 por ciento de mejora en confiabilidad y estamos lejos de haber terminado. Como ejemplo, nos estamos asociando con la ciudad, el Centro de Energía Confiable y el Departamento de Energía, para apoyar la instalación de estaciones de carga para unidades múltiples y la recarga residencial en el barrio de Bronzeville de la ciudad.

Creando nuevos empleos ecológicos resistentes. La transición a energía resistente y pura de Chicago es también una oportunidad para crecer y fortalecer empleos locales que nuestra ciudad no puede perderse. Las nuevas cifras del censo muestran que la población de la ciudad disminuyó por cuarto año consecutivo en el 2018, y las oportunidades de empleo jugaron un importante papel. Afortunadamente Chicago necesitará una nueva fuerza laboral ecológica: Personas diestras en establecer energía pura, modificar instalaciones y ofrecer servicios relacionados. Esto incluye posiciones en ComEd – que trabaja para modernizar la red y hacer la infraestructura más resistente - que la nueva administración ha reconocido como empleos ecológicos. Atender estas demandas requerirá también nuevas perspectivas. Eso significa la creación de oportunidades de empleo para comunidades marginadas y no solo unas cuantas. Empieza con exponer a los jóvenes a las posibilidades de la educación STEM. Necesitamos también proveer oportunidades de desarrollo para los residentes, dándoles los instrumentos necesarios para competir para esos puestos. Las inversiones de ComEd bajo el Acta Future Energy Jobs de Illinois, por ejemplo, conectan a los adultos – incluyendo ex-alumnos del sistema del cuidado de crianza y ciudadanos que regresan – con el entrenamiento necesario para estar listos para el trabajo.

A Bright Future for Chicago

*A guest post by: Joe Dominguez, CEO of ComEd and co-chair of the mayor's environment transition committee
Edited by Lawndale Bilingual News*

May 13 marked a new day for Chicago as Mayor Lori Lightfoot took the helm of America's third-largest city. On day one, the new mayor unveiled plans to respond to the climate crisis by reducing air pollution from the electric and transportation sectors, making infrastructure more resilient to increasingly volatile weather, and creating jobs and economic opportunities for all communities. These plans were developed by her administration's environment transition committee, a group of 35 organizations, including ComEd, that worked together over five weeks to develop new approaches to Chicago's energy and environmental priorities. ComEd powers the lives of 2.7 million Chicagoans and will be a key partner in implementing Mayor Lightfoot's vision for the city, including:

Electrification of public transportation. The electric vehicle (EV) revolution is rapidly accelerating as automakers shift investment to meet growing market demand for EVs and reduce air pollution. Just as quickly, trains, buses and other forms of mass transit also are moving to battery electric vehicles. While weaning vehicles off of fossil fuels will help reduce smog and address the climate crisis, it will create new requirements for our grid to add charging infrastructure, serve additional electric demand and achieve ever-higher levels of reliability. At ComEd, our smart grid investments already are delivering a 60 percent improvement in reliability and we are far from done.

As one example, we are partnering with the city, Center for Sustainable Energy and the Department of Energy to support installation of charging stations for multiunit and curbside residential charging in the city's Bronzeville neighborhood.

Creating new green jobs resilience. Chicago's transition to clean and resilient energy is also an opportunity to grow and strengthen local jobs that our city can't afford to miss. New census figures show that the city's population fell for a fourth year in a row in 2018, with job opportunity playing a role. Fortunately, Chicago will need a new green workforce: skilled people to build clean energy, retrofit facilities and provide related services. This includes positions at ComEd – working to modernize the grid and make infrastructure more resilient – that the new administration has recognized as green jobs. Meeting these demands will also require new perspectives. That means creating employment opportunities for underserved communities, and not just the few. It starts with exposing young people to the possibilities in STEM. We also need to provide development opportunities for residents, giving them the tools to compete for those roles. ComEd's investments under Illinois' Future Energy Jobs Act, for example, are connecting adults – including alumni of the foster care system and returning citizens – with training to become work-ready.

Sandoval protege residentes contra emisiones de Óxido de Etileno

El Senador estatal Martin A. Sandoval (11-D) emitió su voto a favor del anteproyecto SB 1854, que requiere a los fabricantes que emiten significativas cantidades de Óxido de etileno (EtO) al medioambiente, adopten medidas de protección adecuadas si desean seguir operando en Illinois. “He evaluado la situación de seguridad ambiental y el compromiso de las operaciones realizadas por la empresa Elé Corporation en McCook y me siento complacido con lo que he visto,” dijo Sandoval. “Elé Corporation opera dentro de los límites establecidos y se ha sometido voluntariamente a variados análisis coordinados con IEPA y con ESEPA. Esos exámenes confirman que sus emisiones están por debajo de los estándares federales y estatales establecidos.”

Durante el último año, Sandoval ha estado vigilante para que la salud de los residentes y de las familias del Distrito 11 NO sea amenazada por los diversos contaminantes ambientales, incluyendo el mencionado Óxido de Etileno, un tema que ha sido el centro de reciente preocupación entre los vecinos de Willowbrook y del condado Lake. “He confirmado también con los funcionarios de seguridad medioambiental de McCook que NO han habido derrames ni emisiones de gases peligrosos en las instalaciones de Elé Corporation ni dentro de las comunidades colindantes,” aseveró Sandoval. “Seguiré trabajando estrechamente con las agencias federales, estatales y locales para certificar la seguridad de los residentes de mi distrito.”

Hernandez-Backed Legislation to Abolish For-Profit Detention Centers Awaits Governor’s Signature

For-profit detention centers used to carry out Donald Trump’s inhumane family separation policy would be banned in Illinois, under legislation passed by State Rep. Elizabeth “Lisa” Hernandez, D-Cicero, which is now awaiting the governor’s signature to become law. “Yesterday, we learned that the youngest child taken away from their parents by Donald Trump was four months old. Four months,” Hernandez said. “This is beyond appalling, which is why we took matters into our hands at the state-level and passed legislation to abolish for-profit detention centers.” Hernandez championed House Bill 2040, which will prohibit the state or any unit of local government from operating for-profit detention facilities, such as one approved in Dwight, Illinois earlier this year. The Hernandez-backed legislation would also prohibit any unit of government from providing financial incentives to develop, manage or operate any private detention facility. The legislation passed the House with bipartisan support and now awaits Gov. J.B. Pritzker’s signature. Hernandez also passed House Resolution 343, which urges the Illinois Investment Policy Board (IIPB) to divest from any for-profit detention centers, ensuring taxpayer dollars do not go toward companies that contract to detain migrant children.

Legislación Respaldada por la Rep. Hernández Para Eliminar los Centros de Detención con Fines de Lucro Espera la Firma del Gobernador

Los centros de detención con fines de lucro utilizados para llevar a cabo la inhumana póliza de separación familiar de Donald Trump, sería prohibida en Illinois, bajo una legislación aprobada por la Rep. Estatal Elizabeth "Lisa" Hernández, D-Cicero, que ahora espera la firma del gobernador para convertirse en ley. "Ayer supimos que el niño más joven separado de sus padres por Donald Trump tenía cuatro meses de edad. Cuatro meses", dijo la Rep. Hernández. "Esto es más que atroz, por lo que tomamos el asunto en nuestras manos y a nivel estatal y aprobamos la legislación para abolir los centros de detención con fines de lucro". La Rep. Hernández redactó el Proyecto 2040 de la Cámara, que prohibiría que el estado o cualquiera unidad del gobierno local opere instalaciones de detención con fines de lucro, como la aprobada en Dwight, Illinois a principios de este año. La legislación respaldada por la

Rep. Hernández, prohibiría también que cualquiera unidad del gobierno brinde incentivos financieros para desarrollar, administrar u operar cualquier centro de detención privado. La legislación fue aprobada por la Cámara con apoyo bipartidario y ahora espera la firma del Gob. J.B. Pritzker. La Rep. Hernández aprobó también la Resolución 343 de la Cámara que exhorta a la Junta de Política de Inversiones de Illinois (IPI) a no invertir en ningún centro de detención con fines de lucro, garantizando así que el dinero de los contribuyentes no va a compañías que contratan para detener a niños inmigrantes.

Is work stressing you out? Here are tips to help fight it

By Dr. Gary Grosel, chief medical officer, UnitedHealthcare of Illinois

Feeling stressed at work? If so, you're not alone. A recent Gallup Poll revealed that 55 percent of Americans said they experienced stress "a lot" during the day, up from 46 percent in 2006. In the workplace, stress can affect your attitude, relationships with your colleagues and affect your work performance. And although a modest amount of stress is normal, high levels of stress can be dangerous to your health and may contribute to serious health problems such as high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, anxiety and depression. Fortunately, there are ways to help manage stress. Here are tips to consider that may reduce your workplace stress and get you back on a healthy track performing at your usual best. Talk to your boss. Consider having an open discussion with your boss about the stressors associated with your work responsibilities. Ask if there is an opportunity for additional skills training, or possibly even restructure your job to make it more manageable and better aligned with your interests and skills. Also, check if your company has an employee assistance program (EAP), which may provide available counseling and online resources.

IlliniCare Health Leads Effort to Integrate Mental and Physical Health Care for Medicaid Beneficiaries

IlliniCare Health announced a new initiative that will aim to support people with mental health conditions by further integrating mental and physical health care. Leveraging Quartet Health's technology and services, IlliniCare Health will support mental health and primary care providers at the local level to help ensure members -- including those with mental health conditions that have historically been unaddressed -- get the right care at the right time. This effort is an extension of IlliniCare Health's commitment to focus on improving the health of the community by addressing the whole health of individuals, one patient at a time. IlliniCare Health is continually implementing its innovative strategy to address mental health and provide support for substance abuse disorders among Medicaid beneficiaries. With Quartet's technology and services, IlliniCare Health will:

- Better identify members with mental health conditions. Primary care physicians and mental health providers will receive information through proprietary algorithms that will identify members with underlying mental health conditions.
- Connect members to personalized mental health care and treatment options. The partnership will offer providers resources to help them refer members to an extended network of trusted mental health providers and tools to help members with psychiatric and medication management needs.
- Build coordinated care teams. Primary care physicians and mental health providers get to collaborate with one another on treatment plans through Quartet's easy-to-use HIPAA-compliant platform.

all had days when it seems impossible to get everything done. In some cases, poor time management is the reason we feel this way, which then may trigger stress. For your next work assignment, talk with your supervisor before getting started to plan realistic goals, priorities and deadlines.

Take advantage of workplace well-being programs. An increasing number of employers are offering well-being programs through their health plan and are making healthier food options available in the workplace. Some employers offer gym reimbursement programs such as UnitedHealthcare's Gym Check-In, have onsite workout rooms, stand-up desks, encourage walking meetings and well-being challenges like "taking the stairs." Remember, it's important for both your physical and mental health to combine exercise with a well-balanced diet.
