Chairman

who were excluded from federal stimulus aid in response to COVID-19. This fund will provide $1,000 per household for eligible Chicagoans, which includes, but is not limited to, undocumented individuals, mixed-status families, dependent adults and returning residents. The Resurrection Project will convene a diverse group of community-based organizations to conduct outreach and identify households excluded from the federal stimulus relief, to ensure as many eligible Chicagoans participate as possible. Cash issuance will begin in mid-June.

More information on the Chicago Resiliency Fund, including updates on launch date, ways to apply for assistance and ways to donate to the fund, can be found at resurrectionproject.org/chicagofund. "The COVID-19 crisis has families across our communities fighting for their health, economic well-being, and lives. Thousands of families are struggling financially as a result of not receiving any Federal stimulus funds. Now, more than ever it is critical to protect the safety, health, and economic well-being of all residents. We applaud Mayor Lightfoot and the City of Chicago for standing with all communities to support financially burdened individuals and families during this national emergency regardless of immigration status," said Raul Raymundo, CEO of The Resurrection Project. Realizing the critical need to support all of Chicago's residents, a group of funders came together, including the Open Society Foundations, to help establish the Chicago Resiliency Fund. In response to COVID-19, the Open Society Foundations has committed more than $130 million to combat the ravages of the virus around the globe, with a focus on providing immediate relief for vulnerable communities. Chicago received $1 million from the Open Society Foundations, which was the second-largest single donation from the organization for these efforts.

"The COVID-19 pandemic has revealed the role that essential workers, especially undocumented immigrants, play in our society. This is now finally recognized by almost everyone – but not, unfortunately, by the federal government, which has excluded millions from emergency relief – including US citizens. The Open Society Foundations commends the City of Chicago for standing up for these essential workers and their families. We are enormously grateful to the anonymous donor who has stepped in with an additional $4 million to support essential workers, and we look forward to a day when essential and undocumented workers are included in federal relief packages," said Patrick Gaspard, president of the Open Society Foundations.

La Ciudad Anuncia el "Fondo de Recuperación de Chicago"

Por: Ashmar Mandou

El miércoles, la alcaldesa Lori E. Lightfoot, The Resurrection Project y Open Society Foundations anunciaron el "Fondo de Recuperación de Chicago", un programa de asistencia en efectivo de hasta $ 5 millones para apoyar a más de 300,000 residentes de Chicago que fueron excluidos de la ayuda de estímulo federal en respuesta a COVID-19. Este fondo proporcionará $1,000 por hogar para los residentes de Chicago elegibles, que incluye, entre otros, personas indocumentadas, familias de estatus mixto, adultos dependientes y residentes que regresan. El Proyecto Resurrección convocará a un grupo diverso de organizaciones comunitarias para llevar a cabo actividades de divulgación e identificar hogares excluidos del alivio de estímulo federal, para asegurar que participen la mayor cantidad posible de Chicago elegibles. La emisión de efectivo comenzará a mediados de junio. Puede encontrar más información sobre el Fondo de Recuperación de Chicago, incluidas actualizaciones sobre la fecha de lanzamiento, formas de solicitar asistencia y formas de donar al fondo en resurrectionproject.org/chicagofund. "La crisis de COVID-19 tiene familias en nuestras comunidades que luchan por su salud, bienestar económico y vidas. Miles de familias están luchando financieramente como resultado de no recibir ningún fondo de estímulo federal. Ahora, más que nunca, es fundamental proteger la seguridad, la salud y el bienestar económico de todos los residentes. Aplaudimos a la Alcaldesa Lightfoot y a la Ciudad de Chicago por apoyar a todas las comunidades para apoyar a las personas y familias con cargas financieras durante esta emergencia nacional, independientemente de su estado migratorio ", dijo Raúl Raymundo, CEO del Proyecto Resurrección. Al darse cuenta de la necesidad crítica de apoyar a todos los residentes de Chicago, se reunió un grupo de donantes, incluidos los Open Society Foundations, para ayudar a establecer el Fondo de Resiliencia de Chicago. En respuesta a COVID-19, Open Society Foundations ha comprometido más de $ 130 millones para combatir los estragos del virus en todo el mundo, con un enfoque en proporcionar ayuda inmediata a las comunidades vulnerables. Chicago recibió $ 1 millón de Open Society Foundations, que fue la segunda donación más grande de la organización para estos esfuerzos.

"La pandemia de COVID-19 ha revelado el papel que los trabajadores esenciales, especialmente los inmigrantes indocumentados, juegan en nuestra sociedad. Esto es finalmente reconocido por casi todos, pero desafortunadamente no por el gobierno federal, que ha excluido a millones del socorro de emergencia, incluidos los ciudadanos estadounidenses. Open Society Foundations felicita a la ciudad de Chicago por defender a estos trabajadores esenciales y sus familias. Estamos enormemente agradecidos al donante anónimo que intervino con $4 millones adicionales para apoyar a los trabajadores esenciales, y esperamos con ansias el día en que los trabajadores esenciales e indocumentados estén incluidos en los paquetes de ayuda federal ", dijo Patrick Gaspard, presidente de Fundaciones de sociedad abierta.

mental health professionals but as humans. The enormity just months ago would have been incomprehensible to fathom. It all seems like a terrible nightmare, but it's not," says Dr. Pavan Prasad, founder of Chicago's Clarity Clinic.

According to new data from the Census Bureau, a third of Americans are showing signs of clinical anxiety and depression, signifying an alarming jump in numbers seen before the pandemic began.

"People are worried about contracting the coronavirus, or giving it to their loved ones, if they haven't already been laid off, they are undoubtedly concerned about the future of their job, they are losing sleep over not being able to pay their bills or feed their families.

As if that were not enough, the civil unrest we are seeing play out right now before our eyes is heartbreaking on so many different levels, it is a lot to digest all at once," adds Prasad.

Data shows Americans may be turning to vices to help ease the pain. In a newly released report, marketing research firm Nielsen, claimed sales of alcohol have risen nearly 30-percent across the United States compared to the same time last year. According to a report by the CDC the rise of suicide among American workers has increased 40-percent during the past two decades. Historically, suicide rates trend upwards during times of great peril. Suicides, depression, alcohol and drug addiction are expected to grow significantly, and this is not something that can be fixed over a few months, this will last for years to come," remarks Prasad.

So, what can we do when we feel so powerless? "Remain focused on the basics, one foot in front of the other, focusing on the picture as a whole right now may be detrimental. Remind yourself to be present, talk with someone you trust, try to reframe your worries or anxieties, write your worries, or concerns down, practice mindfulness exercises and unplug. As much as we may want to stay up to date with our ever-changing environment, sometimes the healthiest thing we can do is to walk away, talk a moment and regroup," offers Prasad.

"This is not something you can just put a band aid on. The American psyche has been damaged without a doubt. But we must try to remain focused on the greater good, America has been knocked down before, but she always gets back up," observes Prasad.

If you are feeling hopeless right now or simply need someone to listen, please seek professional help. Though patients are not able to be seen in an office setting right now, professionals are still available via telehealth.

Completar el Censo del 2020 es más importante que nunca

El Censo del 2020 cuenta a todas las personas en los Estados Unidos independientemente de su estatus migratorio o país de origen. Los datos recopilados ayudarán a informar la distribución de miles de millones de dólares en fondos federales a estados y comunidades para servicios como infraestructura, atención médica y asistencia alimentaria cada año durante los próximos 10 años.

Los funcionarios estatales y locales también usan el conteo del censo para establecer los límites de los distritos congresionales, los distritos legislativos estatales y los distritos escolares.

Este año, la Oficina del Censo enfrenta nuevos obstáculos debido al COVID-19. La limitación de interacciones públicas plantea un desafío particularmente para el conteo de latinos e inmigrantes, que a menudo dependen de las interacciones en persona para completar el censo decenal. A pesar de esto, la Oficina del Censo continúa su labor, asegurándose de que todos y cada uno de los hogares sean contados.

Aún bajo la situación actual, ¡responder al censo es más fácil que nunca! Por primera vez, las personas tendrán la opción de llenar el censo por internet, ya sea desde la computadora, tableta o celular en my2020census.gov/es. También pueden llamar por teléfono al 844-468-2020 y pedir que un representante les ayude en español, o llenar el formulario impreso y mandarlo por correo postal.

Los datos del censo influyen en nuestra vida diaria, aportando información para tomar decisiones importantes sobre el financiamiento de servicios e infraestructura en su comunidad, incluyendo atención médica, clínicas de salud, centros para personas de la tercera edad, carreteras, escuelas y más. Además, al responder el censo estaremos contribuyendo al bienestar de nuestros niños, por lo que contarlos es clave para que haya mejores escuelas, programas educativos, almuerzos escolares, programas de desarrollo como Head Start, y actividades después de clases en nuestra comunidad. El censo es mucho más que un conteo, es la oportunidad para que todos tengamos un mejor futuro.

La persona que llenará el formulario del censo, deberá contar a todas las personas que estaban viviendo o quedándose en su hogar el día 1 de abril del 2020, o donde viven y duermen la mayor parte del tiempo. Esto incluye a bebés, recién nacidos, niños pequeños, hijos de crianza temporal, compañeros de cuarto, abuelitos, tíos, primos y cualquier miembro de la familia o amigo que esté viviendo con usted, incluso temporalmente.

Por ley, las respuestas al censo se mantienen estrictamente confidenciales y privadas y no se pueden compartir con otras agencias de gobierno como ICE, el FBI o la policía. Sus respuestas solo se usan para generar estadísticas.

Todos jugamos un papel importante para asegurar un conteo completo y preciso en el 2020.
