State Representatives, Senators Urge Lightfoot to Deny General Iron Permit

By: Ashmar Mandou

A joint letter with over 20 Illinois state legislators from the Chicagoland area urged Chicago Mayor Lori Lightfoot on Wednesday to deny RMG subsidiary, General Iron's, requested operation permit. The letter is the latest in a series of public officials expressing opposition to the relocation of General Iron from the city's Northside Lincoln Park neighborhood to the Southeast side.

The letter reads, "General Iron, a subsidiary of RMG, has proven with its decades long history in Lincoln Park that it is a public health threat. From toxic fluff pollution to the overly common occurrence of fires & explosions, this facility has repeatedly violated state environmental regulations, and has been forced to shut down by the City of Chicago itself numerous times."

"I have always stood strong for and supported environmental justice efforts; therefore, my support is with the passionate advocates and families of my community who have real concerns. The citizens of the Southeast side of Chicago deserve the best and I believe that they want imaginative development that creates economic activity and jobs while healing the environmental justice scars of the past," said Assistant Majority Leader Marcus C. Evans, Jr. who represents the Southeast side. Wednesday's letter comes six days after activists in Chicago's Southeast Side concluded a month-long hunger strike to bring attention to the community's opposition to the proposed relocation of General Iron. Several weeks into the hunger strike, Mayor Lightfoot responded to the demands of a growing number of hunger striking community members, acknowledging the legacy of environmental racism on the city's Southeast side, but stopped short of meeting their demands and committing to deny the permit.

The City and Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) are both under federal investigation for the granting of air and construction permits. Residents critique the city's environmental regulations for failing to address critical siting issues in the first instance.

"Residents are expressing concern with a lax set of proposed regulations that themselves do not require fully enclosing toxic material and that water down air monitoring requirements, in contrast to what the city requires for other similar facilities. They also critique the environmental regulations for failing to address critical siting issues in the first instance. Southeast Siders say these unresolved issues and weak regulations are reasons to hold off issuing any further approvals or allowing any construction for the proposed new Southeast Side facility. CDPH has authority under City ordinances to deny the permit and must do so," stated a member of the Natural Resources Defense Council.

al sector Sudeste.

La carta dice, "General Iron, subsidiario de RMG, ha probado con sus décadas de larga historia en Lincoln Park, que es una amenaza para la salud pública. De la contaminación tóxica de pelusa a la ocurrencia demasiado común de incendios y explosiones, esta instalación ha violado repetidamente las regulaciones ambientales estatales, y se ha visto obligado a cerrar por la ciudad de Chicago en sí en numerosas ocasiones." "Siempre me he mantenido firme y apoyado los esfuerzos de justicia ambiental; por lo tanto, mi apoyo es para los defensores apasionados y las familias de mi comunidad que tienen una verdadera preocupación. Los ciudadanos del sector Sudeste de Chicago merecen lo mejor y creo que desean una urbanización que cree actividad económica y empleos mientras cura las cicatrices de justicia ambiental del pasado, dijo el Asistente al Líder de las Mayorías, Marcus C. Evans, Jr., que representa al sector Sudeste.

La carta del miércoles llega seis días después que activistas del Sector Sudeste de Chicago concluyeran una huelga de hambre de un mes de duración para llamar la atención de la oposición de la comunidad a la propuesta reubicación de General Iron. Después de varias semanas en la huelga de hambre, la Alcaldesa Lightfoot respondió a las demandas de un creciente número de miembros de la comunidad en huelga de hambre, reconociendo el legado de racismo ambiental en el Sector Sudeste de la ciudad, pero no cumplió con sus demandas y se comprometió a denegar el

La Ciudad y la Agencia de Protección al Ambiente de Illinois (IEPA) están ambas bajo investigación federal para la concesión de permisos aéreos y de construcción. Los residentes critican las regulaciones ambientales de la ciudad por no atender problemas críticos en primera instancia.

"Los residentes están expresando preocupación por un conjunto laxo de regulaciones propuestas que en sí mismas no requieren que se encierre completamente el material tóxico y que diluyen los requisitos de monitoreo del aire, en contraste con lo que la ciudad requiere para otras capacidades similares. También critican las regulaciones ambientales por no abordar los problemas críticos de ubicación en primera instancia. Los Southeast Siders dicen que estos problemas sin resolver y las regulaciones débiles son razones para posponer la emisión de más aprobaciones o permitir cualquier construcción para la nueva instalación propuesta del Sector Sudeste. CDPH tiene la autoridad bajo las ordenanzas de la Ciudad para denegar el permiso y debe hacerlo", afirmó un miembro del Consejo de Defensa de los Recursos Naturales.
