'Be Proud of Your Roots'

Maru Ayala, president of the Cicero Mexican Cultural Committee

By: Ashmar Mandou

Unbridled joy is palpable when President of the Cicero Mexican Cultural Committee Maru Ayala talks about her culture as well as the events put on throughout her 15 years with the Town of Cicero. "I am really fortunate to work alongside an administration that from the very beginning understood the importance of developing programs and events that honored and continues to honor the ever-growing Mexican community. I am very grateful to President Larry Dominick, especially because he knows how important it is for communities to feel represented," said Ayala. Ayala has been a member of the Cicero community for over 30 years, arriving with her two young children in tow to reunite with her husband who was already working in the Cicero community. "There was more opportunity for us in this country. Leaving Mexico was a true sacrifice, leaving family, leaving friends, leaving everything behind for uncertainty is truly scary," said Ayala, who worked as a teacher back in her native Mexico City. "To see how well we have done, to see my husband and I take advantage of every opportunity given to us in this country, to see my children thrive, I know I made the right decision." However, Ayala wanted to keep their roots intact and worked diligently to ensure her children never forgot where they came from. "Sometimes we forget, we forget the language, we forget the culture, the traditions, sometimes grandparents or parents don't know how to pass that down to their children," said Ayala, who garnered her experience in the entertainment industry via magazines and newspapers as a reporter. "The idea of bringing to life cultural events that would do just that, that would educate, entertain, and foster a sense of pride for the next generations came natural to me. I want communities to know that we are more than just music and food, we are a community of resiliency, of tradition, of diversity... Mexico is such a diverse country and I wanted to share that with everyone by way of festivals and programs," said Ayala. "In the beginning it was a definitely a challenge to gain sponsors, we obviously started off small. As the community

Maru Ayala, Presidente del Comité Cultural Mexicano de Cicero

Por: Ashmar Mandou

Se siente una alegría desenfadada cuando la Presidente del Comité Cultural Mexicano de Cicero, Maru Ayala, habla sobre su cultura y sobre los eventos llevados a cabo durante sus 15 años con el Municipio de Cicero. "Me siento realmente afortunada de trabajar junto a una administración que desde el comienzo entendió la importancia de desarrollar programas y eventos que honraron y continúan honrando la siempre creciente comunidad mexicana. Estoy muy agradecida con el Presidente Larry Dominick, especialmente porque el sabe lo importante que es para las comunidades sentirse representadas", dijo Ayala.

Ayala ha sido miembro de la comunidad de Cicero por más de 30 años, llegando con sus dos niños pequeños para reunirse con su esposo, quien ya estaba trabajando en la comunidad de Cicero. "Hay más oportunidades para nosotros en este país. Salir de México fue un verdadero sacrificio, dejar a mi familia, dejar a los amigos, dejar todo atrás por la incertidumbre, es verdaderamente de miedo", dijo Ayala, quien trabajó como maestra en su nativa Ciudad de México. "Al ver lo bien que lo hemos hecho, al ver que mi esposo y yo hemos aprovechado cuanta oportunidad se nos ha brindado en este país y ver a mis hijos prosperar, sé que tomé la decisión correcta".

Sin embargo, Ayala quería mantener sus raíces intactas y trabajó diligentemente para asegurarse de que sus hijos nunca olvidaran de donde vinieron." Algunas veces olvidamos, olvidamos el lenguaje, olvidamos la cultura, las tradiciones, algunas veces los abuelos o los padres no saben como transmitir todo eso a sus hijos", dijo Ayala, quien obtuvo su experiencia en la industria del entretenimiento a través de revistas y periódicos, como reportera. "La idea de traer a la vida eventos culturales que harían precisamente eso, educar, entretener y promover un sentido de orgullo a las próximas generaciones era algo natural en mi. Quiero comunidades que sepan que somos más que solo música y comida, somos una comunidad de resistencia, de tradición, de diversidad...México es un país muy diverso y quiero compartir eso con todos en forma de festivales y programas", dijo Ayala. "Al principio era verdaderamente un reto conseguir patrocinadores, obviamente comenzamos muy pocos. Al crecer la comunidad, el interés era más grande, el desfile creció. Cada año el festival y el festival del Día de la Independencia, nuestro festival del Cinco de Mayo incluso se trabaja con maestros y líderes locales. Verdaderamente establecemos una fuerte red de gente para organizar programas que eduquen a la juventud, que la mantenga lejos de las calles y lejos de problemas, programas que los ayuden a aprender sobre sus raíces y a sentirse orgullosos de ellas".

Para Ayala no hay final. Durante más de una década se ha comprometido a desarrollar innumerables programas en asociación con la ciudad de Cicero y espera poder orquestar aún más en los próximos años. "Verdaderamente disfruto lo que hago. Me encanta ver reunirse a las familias, me encanta ver su entusiasmo y solo quiero que las generaciones jóvenes sepan que siempre tienen que apoyar a sus familias, al Municipio de Cicero, a los múltiples programas que tenemos para mantenernos conectados a nuestras raíces y sentirse orgullosos de compartir su cultura con todos".

grew, the interest grew. Each year the festivals got bigger, our Mexican Independence Day parade and festival, our Cinco de Mayo festival even are work with teachers and local leaders. We truly built a strong network of people to curate programs that would educate the youth, to keep them off the streets and away from trouble, programs to help them to learn about their roots and to be proud." There is no end in sight for Ayala. For over a decade, Ayala has committed herself to developing countless programs in partnership with the Town of Cicero and she looks forward to orchestrating even more in the coming years. "I truly enjoy what I do. I love seeing families come together, I love to see their excitement and I just want the younger generation to know that they always have the support of their families, the Town of Cicero, the multiple programs that we have to stay connected to their roots and be proud to share their culture with everyone."

‘Camina por el Arcoiris’ en el Museo Field

La asombrosa variedad de colores que se encuentra en la naturaleza no solo es agradable a la vista, sino que también comunica mucha información del mundo que nos rodea. Los matices de las plantas y animales nos pueden advertir la presencia de predadores, atraer a la pareja o indicar su dieta preferida, mientras que el brillo y el destello de color de las gemas y minerales pueden dar una pista sobre su formación. El 22 de octubre, una nueva exhibición en el Museo Field transportará a los visitantes a un mundo inmersivo y colorido que los organizadores describen como caminar por el arcoiris. Wild Color destacará la ciencia tras los colores de la naturaleza en esta exhibición altamente interactiva que presenta especímenes únicos de la colección del museo. Wild Color incluirá una variedad de experiencias

y momentos dignos de una buena foto para los visitantes del museo, de todas las edades. A través de los 7,000 pies cuadrados de la exhibición, los visitantes descubrirán brillantes gemas e iridiscentes minerales, explorarán los sorprendentes matices de los animales que resplandecen bajo luz ultravioleta y aprenderán sobre el pájaro “super negro” del paraíso. El espectáculo incluirá imágenes vibrantes, de medios a gran escala y paisajes sonoros, para crear atmósferas multisensoriales, así como muestras de los colores de la naturaleza, como colibríes resplandecientes y radiantes.

‘Walk Through the Rainbow’ at the Field Museum

The amazing variety of color found in nature is not only appealing to see, but it also communicates a great deal of information to the surrounding world. The hues of plants and animals can warn predators, attract mates, or indicate their preferred diet while the brilliance and sparkle of color in gems and minerals can give clues to how they were formed. On October 22, a new exhibit at the Field Museum will transport visitors into an immersive, colorful world that organizers describe as a walk through the rainbow. Wild Color will highlight the science behind nature’s colors in this highly interactive exhibit featuring unique specimens from the museum’s collection. Wild Color will include a variety of photo-worthy moments and experiences for museum-goers of all ages. Throughout the 7,000-square foot exhibition, visitors will discover brilliant gems and iridescent minerals, explore the startling hues of animals that glow under ultraviolet light, and learn about a “super black” bird of paradise. The show will include vibrant visuals, large-scale media projections and soundscapes to create multisensory atmospheres, as well as examples of nature’s colors, like shimmering, radiant hummingbirds.
